He cofounded Evercore Partners and is the former publisher and CEO of the Los Angeles Times and the San Diego Union-Tribune. He was the First Deputy Mayor of Los Angeles in 2011 and ran for Mayor of Los Angeles in 2012. Beutner, the son of German immigrants, was born in New York and raised in Grand Rapids, Michigan. His mother is a retired schoolteacher and his father is a retired manufacturing engineer.

Beutner attended Dartmouth College, where he majored in economics. After graduation in 1982 he went to work at Smith Barney as a financial analyst. At the age of 29, he became partner at The Blackstone Group. In the 1990s he co-founded the investment banking group Evercore Partners, which went public in 2006.

After the fall of the Soviet Union, Beutner went to work for the U.S. State Department. The Clinton administration tapped him to lead a team into Russia and help transition them from communism to a free-market economy, including the decommission of weapons and other materiel.

In 1996 Beutner co-founded Evercore Partners, an American independent investment banking advisory firm, with former Deputy Secretary of the Treasury, Roger Altman. When Evercore went public (NYES-EVR) in 2006, the IPO reportedly made Beutner more than $100 million.

Nick Melvoin is a former L.A. Unified teacher who has served on the Board of Education since July 2017. Nick's election to the Board in May of 2017 follows a career fighting for our city's schoolchildren. He believes that together, with the right leadership, we can ensure that every student in Los Angeles has the opportunity to succeed. Born and raised on the Westside of LA, Nick served as a seventh and eighth grade English teacher at Markham Middle School, an LAUSD campus in Watts, where he coached soccer and baseball and helped his students launch a school newspaper. At Markham, he saw firsthand how poor governance neglected the needs of our city's most vulnerable students. When he and two-thirds of Markham's teachers lost their jobs due to budget cuts, he fought to be re-hired and worked to end the indiscriminate, seniority-based teacher layoffs that harm so many LA families. As a teacher, Nick joined the ACLU, Mayors Riordan and Villaraigosa, and others to bring a ground-breaking civil rights lawsuit which argued that LA's layoffs violated the rights of students. Nick holds a Bachelor's degree from Harvard University, a Masters in Urban Education from Loyola Marymount University (LMU), and a law degree from the New York University School of Law, where he was a Root-Tilden-Kern Public Service Scholar. In addition to serving as a teacher. Nick has worked in the Obama White House with the Domestic Policy Council and the US Attorney's office where he took part in various civil rights investigations as a legal clerk. Prior to his election, Nick led and facilitated efforts by students, parents, teachers, and community members to rethink and shape the future of our city's schools. He also served as an adjunct professor at LMU where he taught a course on Education Law. In working for nonprofits such as Teach Plus and Educators 4 Excellence, Nick helped to improve the support teachers across the state receive before and during their time in the classroom, as well as amplify teacher voice in policy-making. Nick has recently served on the boards of the Los Angeles County Young Democrats, Brentwood Community Council, Teach For America Associates, University Synagogue's Social Justice Committee, and United in Harmony. He is a graduate of the Jewish Federation's New Leaders Project and the New Leaders Council and has chaired the Jewish Federation's Educators' Network. Nick is also proud to serve as a director of Camp Harmony, a camp for homeless and underserved children. His commitment to solving educational inequity was first sparked as a volunteer at Camp Harmony more than sixteen years ago.

David L. Kirp is a contributing opinion writer for The New York Times. A professor of public policy at the University of California, Berkeley, as well as a prolific author and policy adviser, Mr. Kirp has focused on education policy issues, from cradle to college. He writes for national publications, among them The New York Times, The Los Angeles Times, The Nation and the American Prospect, and is a former associate editor at The Sacramento Bee. His 16 books include "Shakespeare, Einstein and the Bottom Line: The Marketing of Higher Education" (2003), "The Sandbox Investment: The Preschool Movement and Kids-First Politics" (2007) and "Kids First: Five Big Ideas for Transforming Children's Lives and America's Future" (2011).

Mr. Kirp was the founding director of the Harvard Center for Law and Education, which filed landmark lawsuits seeking equal educational opportunity. His latest book, "Improbable Scholars: The Rebirth of a Great American School System and a Strategy for America's Schools" (2013), tells the remarkable story of the Union City, N.J., school district, which relied on tried-and-true strategies, not faddish reforms. The American Education Research Association selected it as the year's outstanding book.

Mr. Kirp has lectured at universities around the world and has been the keynote speaker at many national conferences. In 2008, he was a member of President-elect Obama's transition team.

David L. Kirp is a senior fellow at the Learning Policy Institute and an emeritus professor of the School of Public Policy at UC Berkeley.

SERIES: #1

This series is a product of The Homicide Report, The Times' effort to tell the story of every homicide victim in Los Angeles County.

The project was written and reported by Sonali Kohli. The photography is by Marcus Yam. Iris Lee and Priya Krishnakumar provided the data analysis, graphics and digital production. The idea for the series came from former Times writer Jerome Campbell, who, along with Nicole Santa Cruz, also contributed to reporting.

The Times' Homicide Report compiled deaths by reviewing records from the Los Angeles County Medical Examiner-Coroner's office. The Times used the coroner's definition of homicide, which includes any death of a human being caused by another. This includes criminal homicides as well as justifiable homicides by civilians acting in self-defense.

Information about Los Angeles County's 295 public high schools, including location and student demographics, were obtained from the California Department of Education.

The Times then developed a custom computer program to identify homicides within a one-mile radius of each school. Schools were only included if they were open for the full duration of the study, which examined all killings in the past five years.

The computer code that conducted the analysis is available for review as open-source software.

Kohli worked on this project while participating in the USC Annenberg Center for Health Journalism's 2018 California Fellowship.
